

ABOUT ME

As a child I had the vice of curiosity, voracious appetite for knowledge and I tasted many things:

I gobbled books; I savored the joy of my little scientific experiences, I tasted music and sports, I swallowed comics, I ingested board games, I enjoyed beautiful pictures, I tried theater on stage and on street... Just like a bulimic Eve trying to crunch the whole tree.

It's just some time later that I enjoyed drawing.

As a teenager I started having lessons with Cedric Rouxel and as appetite comes with eating, I decided after a scientific Baccalaureat to prepare my little works by integrating the School of Art "Pivaut" of Nantes. All of this under the exacting eye of professionals.

Today I have a degree in Illustration-Edition-Press and it is with my utensils in my hands that I'm trying to give you the best of myself.

Sometimes sweet, sometimes salty or sour or even bitter, my illustrations are trying to satisfy gourmands.

In short I'm curious, persistent, perfectionist and a very bad cook...
